Tewksbury Planning Board Refuses to sign Subdivision Plan

The Tewksbury Planning Board voted unanimously Monday night to ask the town counsel whether it still has any control over the Beechwood Estates subdivision.

The action came after Arthur E. Fosse, engineer for Beechwood stated he would file the plan with the Town Clerk, and have it registered despite the board's refusal to sign it.

Fosse said he could take the action because, although the board had twice refused to sign the plan, and a covenant attached to it, those refusals came after the deadline for board action had passed. He said that the board's original 3-2 approval of the plan still held.

After the initial approval, no one appealed the plan during the 60-day period the board had to act on it, and the plan went back to the board for signing.

Refuse Signing

At that time board members Edward A. Flanagan and George B. Donovan refused to sign it because it lacked, among other things, sidewalks on one side of sub-division streets.

Chairman Joseph Doherty and Frederick H. Baldwin Jr. voted to sign the plan, but because board member John J. Cooney was absent, the vote was 2-2. A majority is needed for approval of a plan. The split vote was repeated Monday night, as Cooney was again absent.

Baldwin protested Flanagan and Donovan's refusal, stating that by not signing the covenant the board would lose control over the sub-division. The developer, he said, could obtain building permits without Planning Board approval.

Urges Signing

Doherty also urged signing of the plan and covenant. He admitted dissatisfaction with the plan, but said the board should sign it because the deadline had passed.

Flanagan countered by moving that the board reject its earlier approval until the sub-division met all board rules and regulations. No action was taken on the motion because members felt the deadline also prevented rescinding earlier approval.

"This is an attempt to get back power we've already lost," Baldwin commented.

The board then voted to ask the town counsel for an opinion on the matter.

Sesame Street

The board voted unanimous approval of a plan for the Sesame Street subdivision off Whipple Road on condition that the developer, Unified Land Development Corp., present a site plan to the board prior to issuance of building permits. The sub-division includes 12 lots.

ULDC was also granted an exception allowing the firm to forego presenting plans at the meeting that would show the location of every tree of four inches in diameter.

Miles J. Mahoney, vice president of ULDC, originally asked an exception from rules requiring the site plan. The board agreed only to require the plan prior to issuance of building permits after Flanagan said, "They can make a better subdivision without having to make many changes later."

Board Acts

In further action the board voted:

- Baldwin to act as the board's member on the seven-member Open Space and Recreation Committee. He volunteered for the job, and the vote was unanimous.
- Unanimous tentative approval of the design plans for Northwood Estates, a four-lot subdivision off Andover Street.
- Permission to release a lot on Whipple Road near Marston Street, D.D. and M. MacDonald notified the board through Fosse that they wanted to sell the land and a home located there.

- Permission for Thomas Nolan to change lot lines on three Mill Street Estate sites.

- Approval for Richard Roper to have two, one-acre lot releases on Trull Road.

- Permission for Joseph A. McNeil to build on two lots on Whipple Street.

DPW Commissioner predicts Wilmington Flood

Malcolm Graf, DPW Associate Commissioner of the Commonwealth, in charge of Waterways stated yesterday morning, after viewing the Mill Brook situation at Main Street and the B & M RR that "Wilmington will get a real flood, here, sometime. Graf was visiting Wilmington at the invitation of Rep. Fred F. Cain.

AT MILL BROOK: Malcolm Graf is at left, discussing the weed overgrown brook. Next is John Majeski of the Town Engineer's office, then TM Sterling Morris, Rep. Fred F. Cain, Selectman Danny Gillis and Tom Shoughnessey, Chief Engineer of Middlesex County.

A MOVE AGAINST THE CHAMPION: It wasn't quite Spassky - Fisher last Friday, at the Silver Lake Beach Day Tournament, but there were plenty of interested spectators, as Billy Hannon, age 8, faced off against Scott Romanski (back to the camera). Scott emerged the champion.

He didn't like what he saw, at the crossing of the brook and railroad, and he didn't like what he saw, further downstream, where the brook again comes out in the open. He saw trash in the brook. He saw it overgrown, and uncared for. He viewed the "ponding area" upstream, and declared that it would collect water, in a real flood, and that there would probably be serious damage.

Graf also visited an area beside the Nichols Street Bridge, which was built recently, to view a local problem there. The problem he said, could be easily taken of.

Wilmington PBC Members

Attack reported costs of new Chelmsford High School

Three members of the Wilmington School Committee met Monday night with the Permanent Building Committee to discuss school sites, but before the evening ended there was an unscheduled discussion of the reported costs of construction of a new High School in Chelmsford.

Robert Michelson, former chairman of the PBC and Arthur Smith, present chairman, had critical words about the reported costs, and about a brochure they had been reading.

Michelson, in his first statement, said that the figures had left out the architectural costs and that was no joke. "They haven't reduced anything - the only way they can cut their cost is to cut construction". Michelson said he was intrigued by the building cost of $10,240,000 and the total costs of $10,240,000.

He called them "a bunch of figures". "I can give you a bunch of figures, and they won't mean anything - but they'll be a bunch of figures". "I wouldn't have the nerve to put out a brochure like that - as a matter of fact every cost we have ever given the town has included site costs".

Smith, although he spoke less on the subject, told the School Committee that the brochure seemed to tell of a bargain and that "there are no bargains around, believe me."

The subject might possibly be discussed next Monday, in a meeting with the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. It was there that the original discussion began, on July 24th, when the Wilmington Selectmen said that they should get more information on the cost of the new Chelmsford High School.

The principal subject for last Monday's meeting was new schools and new school sites.

An 84 acre tract of land, in North Wilmington, is under investigation as a possible site for a high school, or for a grammar school. Chairman Smith described it as "three quarters usable", and said that there was "probably 30 acres of sand and trees".

There was, he said, a piece of land that was low, but he believed it better to fill in low land than to cut down high land - cheaper. The surveyor has not finished all his work, but it is expected to be completed in time for next Monday's Selectmen's meeting.

Mrs. Hooper, chairman of the School Committee noted that the PBC had suggested that the land be acquired, for either a high school or a grammar school site. Space is needed, she said, for both purposes.

Walter McNamara, former chairman of the School Committee pursued for a while the cost problem. He said he was trying to make a determination in a "responsible fashion".

The answer from Mr. Michelson was that they first had to know what was going to be built on the site. It was not up to the PBC he said, but up to the architect to determine costs. Mr. Smith told McNamara that he was only trying to save time "by choking down a lot of figures and a lot of hypothetical costs".

Tewksbury Police and Selectmen talk over Difficulties

A discussion with police over interdepartmental relations brought tempers flaring, briefly, in the Tewksbury Selectmen's meeting, Tuesday evening, but it ended quietly.

The board had asked Chief John F. Sullivan and his high ranking officers to discuss attitudes of the police toward their jobs, and each other.

The request was prompted by a letter a patrolman sent to each selectman concerning difficulties he had had with another patrolman. However, the writer later requested the matter be dropped shortly after the selectmen invited Sullivan and his officers to discuss that and other problems.

Sullivan said interdepartmental relations were good, adding, "We have a little odds and ends, but that is as far as it goes. Lt. Jopp and Sergeants Eugene Manley, Phillip D. Bradanick and Paul G. Johnson agreed with Sullivan's evaluation.

The chief reported he had talked to the two patrolmen involved in the dispute. He said the meeting resolved the difficulties and ended with the two patrolmen shaking hands.

When questioning concerning personal relations in the department ended, Selectman Frederick

H. Baldwin Jr. noted Selectman Charles H. Goldstein, who was absent, had specific questions to ask in relation to problems in the department. Selectman Frank A. Antonelli suggested the police return when Goldstein was available.

The suggestion prompted a brief firing of tempers from the officers, who were all off-duty.

Noting Goldstein's absence, Chief Sullivan said, "I drove 63 miles to get here." Sgt. Bradanick added, "I'm not going to be any political pawn...If you have questions I'd like to answer them now. I'm not coming back."

Antonelli and the other selectmen dropped the matter and questioned Sullivan and the others about new equipment or personnel needed for the department. Chief Sullivan said his main problem was lack of manpower. "We are so far behind personnel-wise according to the population that it isn't funny", he said, estimating the force at 10 men short.

The chief said the town would need a new police station within a few years, but said there might be difficulty finding sufficient land on Main Street for the structure. He said there wasn't enough land next to the present building to allow for sufficient expansion.

In an unrelated matter, the selectmen voted later to ask state Civil Service Commission that eligibility for the Tewksbury police force be limited to town residents. The commission had queried the selectmen as to whether they wanted the restriction.

Wilmington Planning Board favors new office building

It was a Battle of Red Pencils, Tuesday evening in the Wilmington Planning Board meeting, as members discussed the swamp area near Lubbers Brook and high land near the Boston & Maine Railroad, off Concord St. The pencils were flying around as members tried to draw on a plan their own idea of how boundary lines should be drawn. Lines were drawn and then erased, and more lines were then drawn.

Vin Lopez, owner of the land, has a contract with firms to construct a new office building on the land. That means the street has to be lengthened a couple of hundred feet (Lopez Road) and that meant a new plan, - a Definitive Plan, so called. Lopez had with him Atty Joseph F. Courtney to discuss a plan submitted several weeks ago, and the project. There were two principal difficulties, not to mention a few more minor ones.

One of the two principal difficulties was that a large portion of the land of Mr. Lopez is under water. Bob Leahy of the board had glistening eyes, at time, as he envisaged that land being put in charge of the Conservation Commission - of which Mrs. Leahy is chairman.

Joe Courtney was agreeable, providing his client's difficulties were recognized, and provided the Planning Board would discuss a zoning problem.

That was the second problem.

More than a dozen years ago the town had land rezoned along Concord Street, to Neighborhood Business, in anticipation that the Boston & Maine would want to put a railroad station on the site. But the Boston & Maine didn't see its way clear.

The land had been rezoned on the recommendation of a Planning Board consultant - Mort Braun.

Leahy and Bill MacKinnon were ready to discuss cases. Both wanted to see that office building started. MacKinnon, on one occasion, said the town needed the tax money.

Chairman Mort Grant was not so enthusiastic. Mr. Grant's home is only a few hundred feet up Concord Street - but that probably was not the reason. He foresaw a number of difficulties.

Using those red pencils, the members drew and then erased and drew lines again, on their ideas of how to make the boundaries for the wet-land area, and other factors.

The discussion lasted one hour and forty one minutes, and then finally a compromise offered by Bill Hanlon struck a spark.

The final agreement is that Mr. Courtney is to present a rezoning plan to the Town Meeting, with the Planning Board's blessing.

As he has on a previous occasion, he will have with him a deed, to give land to the town (the wet land) in exchange for the town's rezoning of the neighborhood business zone to industrial.

Everyone seemed to agree - except possibly Mr. Grant.

The gun of Steven Walsh was a stolen one

STEPHEN G. WALSH, 22 of Somerville, formerly of Wakefield, as he appeared after being arrested in Wakefield some time ago, was shot and killed by a Wilmington Patrolman after a Billerica drug store holdup and high speed police chase last week.

The gun for which Stephen Walsh, 22 year old Wakefield youth was reaching at the time of his death on August 2nd, was, it turned out, stolen. Walsh had stolen the gun only two days previously from the Greenwood Pharmacy, in Wakefield. It was positively identified by the owner of the pharmacy, Guy Velardo, who also identified a police photo of Walsh as the man who had held up his pharmacy.

By co-incidence, three different men from Wilmington were involved in the last few minutes of the bandit.

The owner of the Village Apothecary, in Billerica, where Walsh had made his last robbery, is Paul S. Lyman of 4 Meadow Lane, Wilmington.

The Wilmington policeman who shot Walsh, as he resisted arrest and kicked the policeman, was Patrolman Arthur V. Lynch Jr.

The State Trooper who began to put together the clues that led to the full denouncement of Walsh's crime life was Warren "Beetle" Bailey, of Frederick Drive, Wilmington. Bailey was assisted by Wakefield and Somerville officers and the U.S. Treasury Department, in a raid on the latest home of the dead man, at 22 Cross St., Somerville.

Wakefield authorities said that Walsh had been arrested several times, while living in Wakefield, but had not been considered a prime suspect in the Greenwood Pharmacy robbery until the events of August 2nd brought his name prominently into the case.

Greenwood Pharmacy prescription labels were found in the trunk of the black car used by Walsh.

Meanwhile his companion during the high speed chase through Wilmington, Stephen Donnellley, 23, of 48 Washington Street, Stoneham has appeared in Woburn District Court, and is being held in Billerica jail in lieu of $50,000 bail.

NEWLY REGISTERED VOTERS: In Wilmington, Monday night, at the Town Hall, Barbara Sardynski of 108 Nichols Street, Jackie Fisher of Rollins Road, and Mary Lindmark of Randolph Road are shown as they registered.

Wilmington's Board of Registrars will be open next Monday from 7:30 to 9 pm and on Saturday Aug. 19th from noon to 10 pm to register new voters.

Marion Murphy's faith in humanity is strong

Four young ladies, two from Woburn and two from Winchester have renewed Marion Murphy's faith in the human race.

The Wilmington real estate dealer was in Woburn Monday. Forgetfully, she put her purse on her car while it was being gassed, and then drove off without retrieving it.

Among the other things in that purse was Marion's purse was her auto driver's license. When she realized her predicament she retraced her route - there was no sign of the missing purse.

So she drove home, dejectedly. There, on the front door step, were four girls. They had been waiting half an hour, neighbors said.

Of course they had the purse, and of course Marion gave them a reward. Marion still thinks there are nice people in this world.

Snakes rarely attack unless molested, but watch where you walk or climb.

In the United States, the four poisonous snakes are the cottonmouth moccasin, copperhead moccasin, the rattlesnake and the coral snake.

Large blackfanged snakes are dangerous. The are most active at night, spend most of the days lying in the shade of a rock or ditch, or buried in the sand.

If snakebite occurs, treat the patient for shock; keep him quiet and warm, and call for a doctor.

Give coffee or aromatic spirits of ammonia for nausea or faintness.

Ralph Josselyn and his little MGTD

Catherine Josselyn won't turn on the oil heater in her Tewksbury home because in the dark she might trip over an axle.

She's hesitant about entering the cellar from the outside door; she might knock over a wooden horse and send a 300 pound engine crashing to the floor.

All of her problems stem from what she calls, "Ralph's expensive toy." Ralph is her husband. He runs the Village Printshop in the garage of their home at 31 White St. When he isn't doing that, he and his son Richard are rebuilding a 1952 MGTD in his cellar.

The two men started rebuilding the classic roadster because, as Ralph explains it, "my son had dreamed about owning one since he was a child."

Two months ago that dream drew closer when a friend of Richard's told him he knew a man in Lunenburg who wanted to sell an old MGTD that was barely runable. Ralph and his son immediately bought the vintage vehicle, which Ralph described as "able to move then, and that's about all."

Since then the two Josselyns have bought a set of British standard tools, a complete MGTD manual and taken the whole car apart, down to the last nut and bolt. They are also in contact with experts in reupholstering classic cars and supplying used parts for them.

Working on the vehicle hasn't been a great problem to Ralph. As a boy, he could disassemble the 1914 Model T Ford and Harley Davidson motorcycles he owned just after the end of the First World War, and during the depression he worked as an automobile mechanic in South

Weymouth. More recently he has helped keep a 1956 Pontiac in good enough condition so that his other son, Arthur, can regularly use it on trips to and from Rochester, N.Y., where he resides.

Ralph thinks the MGTD should be fully restored in two to three years. Before then the Josselyns expect to replace rusted rocker panels on the vehicle, completely buff and repaint the body, degunk every part to remove dirt and grease and order a new top and upholstery for it.

More difficult work ahead includes getting two pistons for the car together with new rings and giving it a valve job.

TEWKSBURY THEFTS

A missing trailer accessory and an automobile windshield were among the thefts reported in Tewksbury during the past week.

Ward Davis of 75 Cherry Road said Friday a $40 ball from his trailer hitch was stolen.

Michael J. Sullivan of 991 Chandler St. told police Sunday a $100 windshield was missing from his 1967 Ford.

The Josselyns handle these jobs on weekends and one night a week, leaving each job looking as though they've been swimming in a tar pit, but glorying in the exposure of British steel long hidden in rust and grime.

"We go about the work of disassembling the car in a methodical manner that will allow us to put it back together again without too much trouble," Ralph explained. "When we take one section apart, all the nuts, bolts and small parts go into an envelope marked to show exactly where they belong."

As a result, the Josselyn cellar looks like a cramped car parts store, with axles, marked envelopes, universal joints and tires in every dark corner and open space.

Ralph, who is 67 years old, jokes, "I hope I live to see it completed." Looking 10 years younger than his age, few insurance companies would bet he won't live that long. The two Josselyns plan to join the "T" Club of owners of classic MG roadsters, and it might not be unbelievable to contemplate a 70-year-old Ralph Josselyn laying a strip of rubber from his MG tires in a club race.

8th at Norwood Hospital. Mrs. Girard had made her home on Chestnut Street, Wilmington for many years and was the widow of George Girard. She is survived by her daughters Phyllis E. Girard of Norwood, with whom she had been making her home and Mrs. Shirley Montgomery of Wrentham, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held from the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington this morning (Thurs. August 10) at 10 o'clock with the Rev. Willis Miller of the United Methodist Church of Wilmington officiating. Burial will take place in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Hospital Fund Notes

Proceeds from a recent inter-family auction, following a picnic at the James Durkee home were donated to the Wilmington Hospital Building Fund.

On August 1st, the bank balance of the Hospital Building Fund had reached a total of $44,010.00.

This balance is a result of the efforts of many interested people, who donated their time, talents and money. Events included of course, donations in lieu of flowers; the huge barn sale, carnivals, organ concert by Ken Wilson; dance recital by students of Jeanne Everett, neighborhood shows by the small fry, monthly donations by the VFW and the Women's Club, chances on afghans donated by friends and a beautiful bride doll. - Thanks a bunch, all you guys and gals, we needed that!!

Don't Let Them Down

Visit your attic or cellar today, or just look around the house for items you may not be using, but that someone else might like to own. Call Ray M. at 658-9126 or Ray Y. at 658-4311 and donate your unused articles to the upcoming Hospital Fund Auction and Rummage Sale.

The co-chairmen of the September 10th event, would like to hold up the Fund's record of successful events and make this one even better yet. Don't let them down!! They're waiting to hear from you - Now!!

CARD OF THANKS

To the priests of St. Thomas and St. Dorothy's Parish and to the good friends and neighbors and all our relatives, we wish to express our sincere thanks for all the prayers, cards and flowers during Estelle's illness and in our hour of sorrow.

CARD OF THANKS

A great big "Thank You" to my very good friends and neighbors for their cards and visits during my recent illness.

A special "Thanks" to Ed Fuller and Tom Robbins of the Fire Department ambulance crew for their good work. These men are the new breed of our department. I get more proud of this department every day. Now I know what it's like to be on the receiving end.

Sincerely,

William P. Nee, Lt. Wilmington Fire Dept.

BURLINGTON FIRM DISCOVERS SOLUTION TO NEW SCHOOL NEEDS

The urgent need for new school facilities is one of the most pressing community problems in many areas today. The greatest difficulty is often the limited funds available to build the new schools that are needed to educate the rapidly-growing student population.

This was the situation in the town of Chelmsford, Mass., until Day and Zimmerman Associates of Philadelphia, an architectural-engineering-planning firm with offices in Burlington, came up with an ideal solution to the Town's urgent needs for a new high school to house 2400-3000 students. Day and Zimmerman produced a plan for an advanced-design, totally-functional school geared to the latest educational techniques, which could be built for millions of dollars less than Chelmsford's School Building Committee had expected. What was originally projected to the SBC as an impossible $17 million project two years ago - and initially rejected - became feasible at Day and Zimmerman's proposed cost of approximately 10 million. As it turns out, the high school Chelmsford needs and wants - with a few additional assets the Town never thought it could possible have - is now going to be built for even less than that amount, and ready for occupancy in the Spring of 1974.

This outcome has been pleasantly surprising to Chelmsford residents, to say the least - and it opens many new doors to other communities needing new school facilities but limited in funds. The Chelmsford complex is being built at an amazingly low cost-per-pupil of $3,555 in comparison with the Massachusetts State average of $6,710 as computed by School Management Magazine. And if Chelmsford can do it, so can any other city or town that needs a new school.

The Day and Zimmerman design will be built at a construction cost of approximately $7 1/4 million by C.E. Blanchard of Lynn, Mass. the general contracting firm which won the contract after Day and Zimmerman and the SBC carefully scrutinized 8 construction bids and estimates from over 120 sub-contractors. The recommendation to select Blanchard was made to the SBC by D & Z associate partner John W. Whitehead at a meeting recently in Town Hall, and received unanimous approval, according to School Building Committee Chairman James Sullivan.

The plan for Chelmsford's new school on a 95 acre rural site near Route 3, includes everything from adaptable classrooms with soundproof motorized moving partitions, 9 football fields and facilities for all sorts of athletic activities, a gym that can seat 2400 which the Townpeople can use for Town Meetings, a built-in expansion potential up to 3000, and in general all the best features of advanced design, quality materials and construction, with every conceivable facility for a total-education concept. The obvious question arises as to how Day and Zimmerman can devise such a plan and bring the whole project to fruition at per-pupil cost that is just slightly more than half of the State average.

The answer is multi-faceted, but it boils down to three basics: expertise, experience and unique approaches. Initially, Day and Zimmerman uses a project team approach, with every conceivable category of technical expert required for such a comprehensive plan available from within the company. The project team works together on an overall plan and design with the constant assistance of in-company cost estimators who tabulate the current cost of all involved factors to keep expenditures as low and quality as high as possible from the start to the finish of the project.

The project team is also assisted by the company's technical computer system, which can quickly provide the planners with the best and most economically feasible answer to any question concerning all phases of the project plan and design, from the first shovel of dirt on the construction site down to the last piece of chalk needed for the classrooms. In designing the actual school building, the ultimate goal is to provide the greatest possible amount of educationally-usable space (such as classrooms) to unusable (closets, corridors, etc.) and still maintain an advanced, attractive design.

The firm's projects are also geared to minimum site disturbance, taking advantage of natural grading, contours and landscape, which not only lowers substantially site preparation costs, but retains the ecological quality of the area and results in an overall finished product of far greater natural beauty.

This general approach to Day and Zimmerman's school projects, directed toward comprehensive, advanced, functional and ecologically sound designs that can be erected at a lower cost than an alternative type of plan of less quality, has resulted in numerous awards for the firm's school projects in many states. Day and Zimmerman's operations range beyond the area of schools, of which it has already completed some 489, into various other large-scale architectural, engineering and planning projects such as hospital complexes and shopping centers. Their various projects span virtually every state in the Union, and extend into foreign countries.

TEENAGERS PICKETED
TEWKSBURY POLICE

Twenty teenagers picked the Tewksbury Police Station Tuesday night, protesting alleged police brutality and harassment by a patrolman.

The juveniles, many carrying signs protesting treatment of teenagers by Patrolman Allan Stevens, walked in front of the station crying, "Fire Stevens," and other epithets.

They accused Stevens of beating juveniles and being unnecessarily rough when arresting them. "Most of them are good guys," said one blond girl in a red sweat-shirt. "It's only Stevens we're against."

Stevens was cruising in a patrol car at the time, and only saw the pickets briefly as he drove by.

He said he had arrested a number of the demonstrators or their relatives at different times.

He said while professional criminals knew he was only doing his job when arresting them, many teenagers felt he was harassing them. "I'm not ashamed at my actions anytime, anywhere," Stephens said. "In court I've never had a false arrest or a not guilty finding on anyone I've arrested."

Stephens said much of the crime and drug offenses in the town is committed by teenagers, so he has arrested or investigated a large number of them. "I do my job to the best of my ability and as good or better than most," he said.

He reported his home has been stoned and his family subjected to harassment, verbal abuse and bomb threats.

Letters

Dear Citizens:

I, James R. Miceli, candidate for the office of State Representative, herein issue a challenge to my opponents, Rep. Fred Cain and Leo Harrington, to engage me in public debate as soon as is convenient to both parties.

As a voter I have always admired those candidates who exhibited the courage to show their colors to concerned citizens in a formal head-to-head exchange.

Indeed, it should be an accepted prerequisite for service as a legislator that the candidate be a skillful debator. For in order to effectively present a bill or argue against one, a representative must speak clearly, authoritatively and confidently. He must be capable of defending his well-prepared presentations against the attacks of some of the more forceful orators of our time.

Such a debate as I propose should demonstrate which of us possesses the necessary skills to perform a legislator's duties both on the floor of the House and in committee investigations.

Furthermore, I'm certain Mr. Cain and Mr. Harrington share my concern for the fate of our district and our state, but we each differ in our analysis of the problems, our relative experience in coping with such difficulties as are arising, and our solutions. It is, therefore, only fitting that we allow the people we seek to represent to hear and weigh our respective views and, thereafter, to select that man among us who best suits their ideals.

Dilemmas such as the climbing costs of property taxes, power rates, public education, and automobile insurance; welfare and drug abuses; police protection; waste removal and unemployment all cry out for solution. I feel we aren't moving in the proper direction and merely seek to allow the voters to compare my methods of change with those of my opponents.

Very sincerely,
James R. Miceli

Dear Larz:

Your page one epitaph for the no motor boating amendment came as no surprise, particularly to those familiar with the overwhelming, inefficient, blundering and continually erroneous bureaucracy which calls itself the government of this Commonwealth.

The letter you quoted from a John Davis is typical of a state agency minion parroting a paragraph from the most convenient law to hide behind while at the same time trying to sound like Moses issuing a Commandment. Another example of how much "home rule" a town really has!

It's been a while since this member of the old "Vigilant Dozen" gang who "terrorized" a local big businessman has taken on the bureaucrats, but it's so much fun harassing the pomposity of Beacon Hill, I can't resist.

I think for openers, Mr. Davis, the assistant director of the Mass. Division of Marine and Recreational Vehicles shall be towed in an inner tube to the center of Silver Lake and anchored.

Then shall we assemble all the local intelligentsia who'd just love to roar their Merc's 60's, 70's and 80's and have them churn our little puddle into bubbling froth?

Would Mr. Davis still say that Silver Lake "should be subject to multiple use by all the citizens of the Commonwealth"?

I'm going to ask him.

Sincerely,
Bill MacKinnon

Dear Captain Neilson:

With crime escalating at its present rate, I find peace of mind in knowing Wilmington's Police Department has brave, dedicated officers, an example of this was Patrolmen Arthur Lynch and Fred Brown whose job of protecting our way of life, homes and all we hold dear usually goes unmitigated.

Their swift action on August 2nd must serve daily as a deterrent to those who want a try at the easy way, the getting away with lesser acts, graduating to the fast money or narcotics. They make it a pleasure to support your local police.

My appreciation,
Richard E. StormsJune Foley panned for gold in Colorado

June Foley, daughter of Mr and Mrs John Foley of Birchwood Road, Wilmington, has now had the experience of panning for gold in the old camping sites in Colorado.

She is one of 76 Girl Scouts from throughout the U.S. and four international Girl Guides from Mexico and Barbado who was a part of a "Restore the Ruins - Recall the Riches" national event in Colorado, July 25, Aug. 8.

The purpose of the event was to give the girls a firsthand knowledge of the Colorado ghost towns and their history, and to have experience in the restoration of historical sites to enable them to assist in similar projects in their home communities.

June is representing the Baldwin Neighborhood of Girl Scouts, Wilmington - Tewksbury and Billerica.

The girls spent the first two days in Denver, gaining background through tours of the State Historical Museum, the Governor's Mansion, and the restored Zang Museum.

A three day trip enabled them to visit a commercial ghost town

JOHN MARKEY, JR.
WILMINGTON COORDINATOR FOR KERRY CAMPAIGN

John Markey, Jr. of 555 Woburn St. Wilmington has been appointed town coordinator for John Kerry's campaign for US Congress in the Fifth District.

Markey first met Kerry last spring at Boston College where Markey is a student.

Three organizational meetings have been held, two leaflet drops have been made and work on the canvass is progressing.

The canvass is the biggest project and needs the most manpower so more Kerry supporters are needed to assist.

A coffee party for the Kerrys is planned for August 19th at which John Kerry hopes to have the opportunity to voice his opinions to as many residents of Wilmington as possible.

Markey is a 1970 graduate of Austin Preparatory School in Reading and a third year student at Boston College.

They stayed overnight at Cripple Creek, at a 9,494 foot altitude on the west side of Pike's Peak. They hissed and applauded the early-day mining town melodrama presented by the famous Imperial Players, and they rode on the restored narrow-gauge railroad.

There was a lunch and tour of the Air Force Academy, near Colorado Springs, and they spent a week camping out near the fa-nous St. Louis mine in historic Central City, once the richest square mile on earth.

The girls worked on various restoration projects, from the cataloguing of graves in the cemetery, to cataloguing costumes in the Opera House. Their participation in the projects was supervised by members of the Central City Opera House Association, the Little Kingdom Council, and Colorado Citizens for Central City.

Sponsors of the event was the Girl Scouts Hi-Mile Council, in Denver, Colorado.

FULL-TIME HEALTH AGENT FOR TEWKSBURY

The Tewksbury Board of Health discussed the need for a full-time health agent for the town Tuesday night.

Part-time health agent John Fleming Jr. wrote the board that health problems were increasing with the town's rapidly-growing population. "The town should as soon as possible have a full-time competent health agent," he added.

Chairman Everett F. Penney Jr. commented, "I think this year we should exert some kind of effort to get a full-time health agent." He suggested asking the League of Women Voters, the Finance Committee and others to support the need for full-time health protection.

Penny said the part-time agent's salary and present funds from other health areas might be used so as to fund hiring of the full-time man without increasing the town budget.

Board member Mrs. Barbara Jackson suggested the board investigate how many other towns have full-time agents. The board agreed to her suggestion.

The board voted unanimously to permit stabling of a horse at Ramesy's barn on Whipple Road. The horse is owned by Richard Marchi of 437 Rogers St.

Board member Charles Coldwell said he would investigate a complaint that effluent was running from the land of William Rodis of 11 Cleghorn Lane onto the property of Edward of 9 Coldwell Lane.

The members agreed to ask a representative of a Tewksbury motel and the town counsel to attend the next meeting. The two would discuss problems with the motel's septic system.

Power lines
to cross Tewksbury Roads?

The Tewksbury Board of Selectmen took under advisement Tuesday night a request from the New England Power Company for permission to cross town roads with a new power line.

John F. Vance Jr., company transmission engineer, said the lines would carry 346,000 volts from the Woburn substation to its substation in Ayer.

The line would cross Main, Whipple, Marston, Old Boston, Marshall, Pleasant and Pine Streets, he said.

Residents Effect
Vance's appearance prompted questions from selectmen and 15 residents concerned about the effect the wires would have on nearby homes.

Several persons questioned whether the lines could be run underground. Vance answered that would be unlikely because above ground lines cost $100,000 a mile to build, whereas those underground cost $1.3 million a mile and took days to repair.

He said the wires could be moved as much as 100 feet to either side of the company's easements to prevent inconvenience to persons who own land through which the line would go.

The lines would rest 55 feet above ground on 70 foot towers, according to Vance. He predicted the line would be in service by May 1, 1974.

The selectmen tabled the motion after stating they wanted to inspect the points where the lines would cross town roads.

The board voted to hold hearings at the same time for a common victual and liquor license for the North Meadow Tennis Club due for completion October 1 on Carter Street.

Howard Hall, representing the club, said it would have a restaurant seating 102 persons and a cocktail lounge with 68 seats. He said the facility, which includes tennis courts, swimming pools and other recreational facilities will cost $1 million.

Antonelli asked if the courts would be rented to the public. Hall said no, adding that there had been a discussion of letting the school department use the courts during school hours.

The board tabled a request for a permit to store 26,000 gallons of gasoline and other flammable liquids on land near Rte. 495 on Andover Street owned by Thomas Sullivan of 149 Pike St. The tabling came on the suggestion of Selectman Donald E. Sheehan. Sheehan said he wanted more information on what kind of a service station would be built on the land.

The board voted to allow David A. and Mary G. Sharpe to withdraw an application without prejudice to store 1,000 gallons of lubrication oil, 25,000 gallons of gasoline and other flammable liquids on their property.

In other action the board voted:

- To transfer $300 from the reserve fund to the overtime account, which the Finance Commission said was almost depleted.

- Reappoint Warren Ray as civil defense director for a year. Ray was also recognized by the board and the state for his outstanding service.

- Appointed the Rev. Sheldon Kelly to the Council on Aging.

- Recognize John P. Shimkus of 328 Shawshen Street for his 20 years of service as a school crossing guard. Shimkus recently retired from the post.

- Tabled a plan to name Pine Street Kane Lane after the only residents, the Trudeau family, wrote suggesting the name be Trudeau Lane.

- Granted a raffle license to the Father Coppens' Council of the Knights of Columbus on Main St.

- Granted a beano license to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

- Appointed the election officers for the September primary.

- Tabled the signing of the contract with the Firefighters Association because Town Counsel Charles J. Zaroulis was unable to attend the meeting and inspect the final revision of the contract.

- Chose for jury duty at the September 18 session of the Cambridge Criminal Court Anstey Myhr of 919 Whipple St. and Ralph Boone of 12 Carleton Rd.

- Chose for jury duty at the September 11 session of Cambridge Superior Court James T. Doyle of 32 Brentwood St.

- Chose for jury duty September 11 session of Lowell Superior Court Edward A. Flanagan of 278 Pine St.

In addition to the creation of jobs it would also prevent blight in the cities and suburbs, especially where the now overburdened taxpayer might delay painting his home for a year or two or never paint it for financial reasons. Ideally, the proposal could after a long period lead to the end of the urban renewal programs and several other federal giveaway programs which subsidize repairs and other home programs.

The spending cycle would benefit the federal government through added income in taxes. The painter would be required to pay taxes and so would the paint manufacturer, offsetting the loss of income from the tax credit. State, local and federal government would benefit through the jobs produced by the decrease in unemployment costs and welfare assistance.

The Morrisette Proposal is not intended to benefit those who might wish to add a swimming pool or a lavish patio, but it is hopeful that the plan could assist a family head who might want to add a room to the homestead.

Under the Morrisette proposal, a minimum credit of $100 might be proposed to eliminate attempts to claim credits for minor repairs and a guideline or ceiling on credits be written out before it becomes law.
